Harvesting by Moonlight.

From the St. James Gazette. The unusual sight of harvesting by moonlight was witnessed on many farms in Lincoinshire when operations were continued up to midnight. It was the first fine day experienced for upward of three weeks, and being anxious to finish, farmers made most of the opportunity. A considerable acreage of corn was gathered in, but a great deal of it has been rendered worth-less by recent heavy and protracted rains.

UNUSUAL INTEREST

All Classes Looking Forward to the Hutchins-Davis Debate.

DIVIDED INTO CONFIDENT CLANS

Sketches of the Men Who Will Fight a Duel of Argument.

THE ARRANGEMENTS

Public interest in the joint debate which is to take place at Convention Hall tonight between Mr. Stilson Hutchins and Mr. Henry E. Davis is very great. The sentiment is not confined to any class or either sex. Lawyers, bankers, business men, clerks, mechanics and laborers have all been in eager pursuit of admission tickets ever since the assurance that the debate would take place has been established, and women never displayed more anxiety to secure matinee tickets than they have been showing in their ac tivity to procure cards to Convention Hall. For the past five days Messrs. Hutchins and Davis and their respective representatives. Messrs. Lawrence Gardner and C. V Gates, have been simply overwhelmed with requests for the coveted tickets. They have been personally pleaded with by ear nest legions, and their mail has been ed down with correspondence to the same effect. Silver and sound money men as well as those who want any old thing with a government financial promise tagged to it have been courting for the favor of admission to Convention Hall as ardently as though they were seeking exaltation in the hearts of their fair ones, and the more zealous have even sought to purchase tick-ets at prices higher than Italian opera orchestra stalls bring when the speculators have looted the box office.

All these people are divided distinctly into two factions. The silver men and the close friends of Mr. Hutchins are proudly confident that he will simply wipe up Convention Hall floor with Mr. Davis and leave his remains like a bedraggled dish rag hanging over the footlights of the stage. The sound money men and the intimates of Mr. Davis, on the other hand, declare with emphasis that indicates absolute assurance that he will not do a thing to Mr. Hutchins but put him through an intellectual threshing machine and pulverize him to such an extent that nothing but the finest sort of chaff will be left.

Six or seven thousand people holding these views with a tenacity that is unyielding will gather tonight to listen to the duel of argument, confident in their own minds that their particular champion will make his side of the discussion a demonstration that cannot be assailed or controverted even were Demosthenes to come again to try it on the one or Cicero be resurrected

No other two men in Washington prob-ably are more widely known than Mr. Hutchins and Mr. Davis. Both have been long prominent in the affairs of the com-munity. Mr. Hutchins is the founder of the Washington Post, which he began pub-lishing here in 1877. At the same time he entered actively into other business ven-tures here, and took his place in society. tures here, and took his place in society. He has been successful in his material affairs, and is generally credited with being several times a millionaire. He is large and powerful of physique and active and athletic as a youth. While he has never figured as a public speaker, he is noted for his intellectual ability, and is famous as a brilliant conversationalist and after-dinner talker. He has been a democrat all his life and an equally firm believer in the double standard of metal money.

Mr. Davis is a much younger man than Mr. Hutchins, and is a native Washingtonian. From his earliest boyhood he showed abilities. As soon as he was graduated in the law he attracted the attention of learned jurists by his comprehensive knowledge of the niceties of the law, and soon came to be regarded as one of the leading mem-bers of the bar. He showed himself as apt in argument as he was familiar with legal subtleties, and swiftly achieved distinction. He took an active part in public affairs, and his reputation for brightness and his ability to discuss the social and political problems of the day was soon established.

Mr. Davis is below the medium neight, but is strongly and trimly built. He has been an ardent democrat all his life until the present financial issue was brought to the front, and has been prominent in the local democratic politics.

Program of Proceedings.

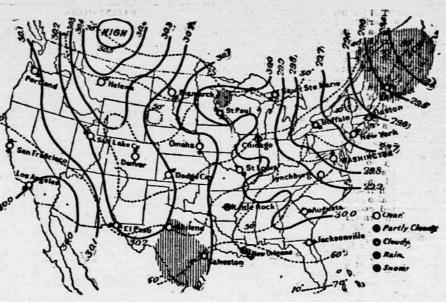

The debate tonight will begin at 8 o'clock, after several selections have been rendered by the band in attendance. Ticket holders alone will be admitted at the main entrance to Convention Hall, on New York avenue. Mr. Hutchins will proceed to the scene accompanied by Mr. Lawrence Gardner and a companied by Mr. Lawrence Gardner and a party of friends. Mr. Davis will be escorted by the officers and the members of the executive committee of the Sound Money League. These gentlemen will meet at the Raieigh at 7 o'clock and proceed in carriages, with a band, to the Concord flats, riages, with a band, to the Concord flats, where Mr. Davis resides. There a seemade will be given and the march to the ha'll commenced. Senator Charles J. Faulkner, chair an of the democratic congressional tommittee, will preside, and the official stenographers will be Messrs. Robert Boswell and Hunter Gait. The debate will occupy two and a half hours. Mr. Hutchins will open with an address of fifty-five minutes. Mr. Davis will follow for a similar period. Mr. Hutchins will then devote twenty minutes to closing his side of the debate and Mr. Davis will bring the discussion to an end by occupying the same

The city now has its much-hoped-for sewer, running through King street, and in a few days the "traps" and "catch basins" will have been put in and water rushing under the ground "slick as grease." From what can be learned of the matter it is said not to be the intention of many of the adjoining property holders to tap the sewer, which would have given the city a revenue that would have, to say the least, paid the interest on the money expended in erecting the sewer. Its sole duty now will be, as The Star reporter learned, to carry off the waste water on King street and the streets crossing it at right angles, as was done before by the surface drainage. Alexandrians are first to call for improvements, but last to use them. It is said that an ordinance re-quiring property holders to tap the sewer for closet purposes will be passed. Many think that the money spent on the sewer could have been better spent in improving the streets, which are in a very bad condition; many of them need renew-ing from end to end. An effort has been made by some of Alexandria's leading citizens to have better streets, and the last legislature authorized a bond sale to the amount of $200,000 for street improvements, but the city fathers have not seen fit to take advantage of it. It is hoped the material used in building the streets, for they are certainly rough and disagree able to ride over. Street improvements are not dead, but gently sleeping.

STREET SWEEPING BY HAND. Satisfactory and Successful Work on F and G Streets.

Business men and residents along F and G streets between 5th and 15th streets northwest are much gratified over the success which has attended the new order of sweeping the thoroughfares by hand instead of machines. The concrete and gutters, they say, present a new and strange appearance, being kept free from dirt and debris. It is also said that the cost of this work, which is being done under the supervision of Inspector Robert E. Doyle, is no greater than that for machine work, while greater than that for machine work, while it is eminently more satisfactory. Business men on streets intersecting F and G streets are considering the advisability of asking the Commissioners to adopt the same system on their streets.

 company expressed a desire to place these wires underground, and made application to the Commissioners for a permit. This was refused. Then the company exhibited its permit of three years prior and claimed the right under it to place the wires under ground. The question was submitted to the attorney for the District for a legal opinion as to the Commissioners' right to recognize the permit. He held that the permit was valid and had not been re-

"Referring to your letter of September 14, 1896, advising me that the board had directed a permit issued to the United States Electric Lighting Company to replace a wooden pole at the corner of 9th street and New York avenue northwest, with an iron pole of the kind used for public arc lighting, and requesting the company to show cause why existing overhead wires attached to such wooden pole should not be removed I am pleased to should not be removed. I am pleased to advise you that the charge of poles has been made and all of the overhead wires referred to have been removed.

All Wires Under Ground.

"The United States Electric Lighting Company has always been and is now not only willing but anxious to place its entire system of wires under ground, in approved conduits of the very best kind known to science, in conformity to the desire of the public, as well as to correct business principles. In compliance with this policy, and under the sanction of various acts of Congress applicable there to, the company has already, at great expense, placed under ground almost all of its former overhead system. The remaining overhead wires are only an insignificant fraction of the original plant. It is the desire of the company to place thes remaining wires under ground at the earli-

Among the wires still remaining over-Among the wires still remaining over-head is a line upon the south side of F street between 9th and 15th streets north-west, one of the most congested business thoroughfares of the city. Every objection ever urged to an overhead wire is peculiar-ly applicable to this particular line. For the convenience and safety of the the company is particularly anxious to place it ur der ground.

"June 22, 1896, for the purpose of affecting the removal of this overhead line, I addressed your board a letter, calling your attention to the fact that, upon June 3, 1893, the board had issued a permit to the com-pany authorizing it to place this particular line, with many others, under ground; that this permit, however, required that the par ticular location of the conduit, in the said street, should be subject to your approval; that the company was ready and desired to remove the line and place it under ground to the end that the street might be entirely relieved from all overhead wires, and that the company respectfully requested you to fix the exact location in the street for the contemplated conduit or subway. Location of the Conduit.

"No response to said letter having been received I have the honor to again invite your attention to the matter and again re quest that you will, at the earliest convent ence of your office, inform the company what particular location in said street is satisfactory and will be approved by you for the construction of the conduit or sub-way authorized by the permit of June 3, 1893. "In view of the recent loss of life and property by the tornado of September 29 the possibility of the repetition of that dis aster at any time, the obvious desirability if not necessity of removing all overhead wires, the universal public sentiment, which demands such removal, and the repeatedly declared intention and will of Congress in regard, the company assumes that honorable board will hasten to unite with it in speedily removing the objectiona-ble overhead wires now existing upon the above mentioned thoroughfare. "To accomplish this result no further action upon your part is necessary than the simple designation of a location upon the street for the construction of a conduit un der the permit already granted; but even if further permit be necessary the company infers that your honorable board is satisfied of its power in the premises from the fact that upon the 17th day of September last you issued to the Postal Telegraph Company a permit for the construction of an underground conduit for electrical purposes on F, 14th and E streets northwest, partly In the very street covered by our existing permit. If the Postal Telegraph Company is entitled to such a permit, either by way of placing existing overhead wires under ground or by way of extending an existing underground conduit, there can be no possible doubt of your power, if necessary, to issue a new permit to enable the United States Electric Lighting Company to bury its overhead wires, especially as that will be done by an extension of existing con-iuits.

"Asking your immediate attention to this matter as much in the interest of the pub-lic as that of the company, I am, very respectfully."

THE EMRICH ASSAULT CASE. Phillips' Alibi Fails and He is Held for the Grand Jury. Today in the Police Court, when the hearing in the Emrich assault case was resumed, Lawyer Kuhn appearing for Chas Phillips, the defendant, called Fannie Gibson, colored, and her married daughter to prove an alibi. They live on Capitol Hill, and they testified positively that Saturday night, September 19, he came home at 11:30 o'clock. They were sitting up, waiting for the return of another member of the family, who was expected from the country. When the defendant came in they looked at the clock. Counsel for the prisoner, during the course of his argument, referred to the fact that two shots had been fired, while the pistol produced in court yesterday showed that only one shot had been fired from it.

"That makes no difference," said Judge
Miller, "for I am of the opinion that there were two men there."
"That is undoubtedly true," remarked Precinct Detective Hartigan. "There were certainly two men there."

certainly two men there."

Judge Miller said there was enough to hold the defendant for the grand jury. The alibi was not erough to clear Phillips by any means, for the witnesses located him at home an hour before the sh The case was sent to the grand jury and bond was fixed at $3,000. In default of security the prisoner was committed to fail court. Although the District law prohibits the sale of certain birds at certain seasors of the year these birds are sometimes shipped here from a distance so that their sale, it is claimed, does not in any manner interfere with the birds in this section of the country except so far as it may affect the gunners who make their living in this way. The bird laws in the different states vary considerably, and although a bird legally killed in one of the states and shipped here, if it is out of season here the dealer is not permitted, under a penalty, to expose or sell the game. It is likely that in this case the defense will set up the plea that the birds were legally killed and that the law here cannot interfere with commerce between the states in this manner. Dealers in game are very much interested in the case, as the result may seriously affect their business.

Two other men whose names are being mentioned in the same connection are Bishop Montgomery of Los Angeles, Cal., and Rev. Dr. Brann, pastor of St. Agnes' Church, New York. It is said that Bishop Montgomery is the candidate of the friends of Bishop Keape. Bishop Montgomery is a young man, well educated, and, while a friend of the "liberal" party, is thought to be far enough removed from the scene of action to be acceptable to the opposite faction.
